

A basic assumption of our Collaborative Research Center is that Macht und Herrschaft, power and domination, manifest themselves in the organization of the controlled space. This assumption opens up a multitude of avenues to explore this topic in an interdisciplinary and transculturally comparative way. For a long time, center and periphery were understood as a rigid, interrelated system with an active, structuring center and a dependent, passive periphery. The spatial turn, computer-aided network analyses and the stronger emphasis on agency have substantially changed our understanding of center and periphery without fully exploiting the analytical potential and dynamic interdependence of space and domination. The aim of the conference is to develop the thematic field from the perspective of a wide variety of disciplines and to make the transdisciplinary discussion fruitful for research within the respective disciplines by applying a wide range of approaches. The negotiation processes between center and periphery, the waxing and waning of the communication space, the mobility of persons and things, the center as world order, which propagates its idea of the world through ideology and architecture, are topics to be discussed.
